Tamarack '81

North Central High School

Spokane, Washington

For everything there is a season:

A time to break down, and a time to build up . . .

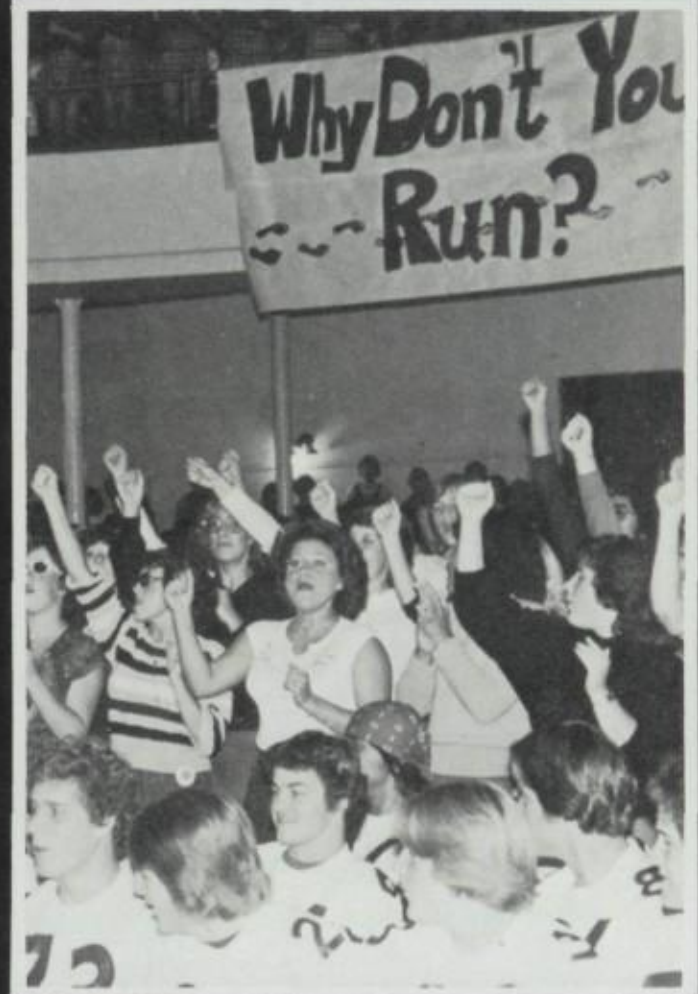

*A time
To Mourn,*

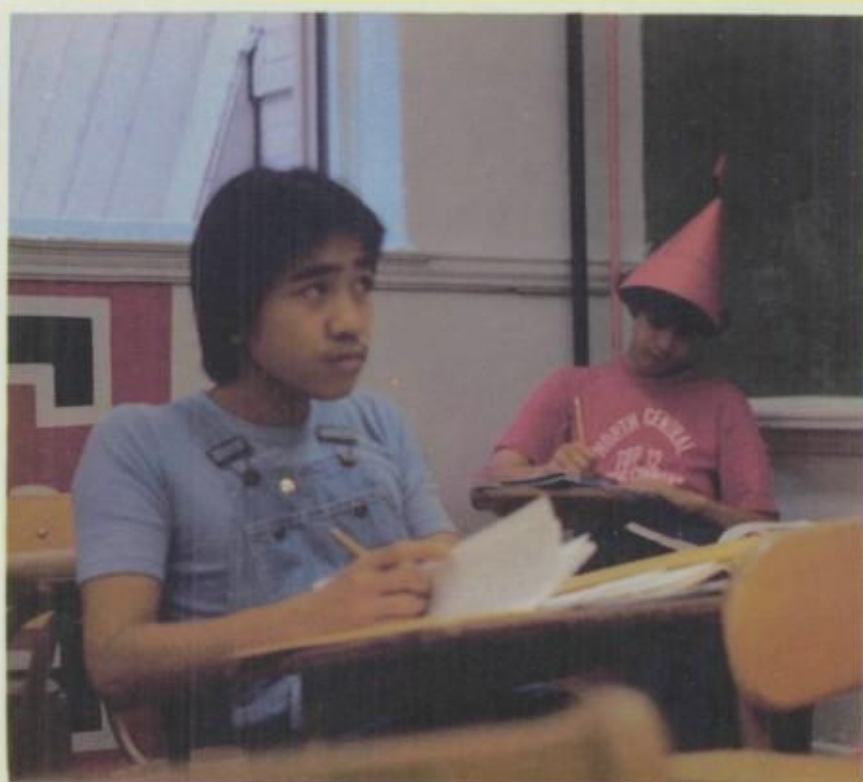

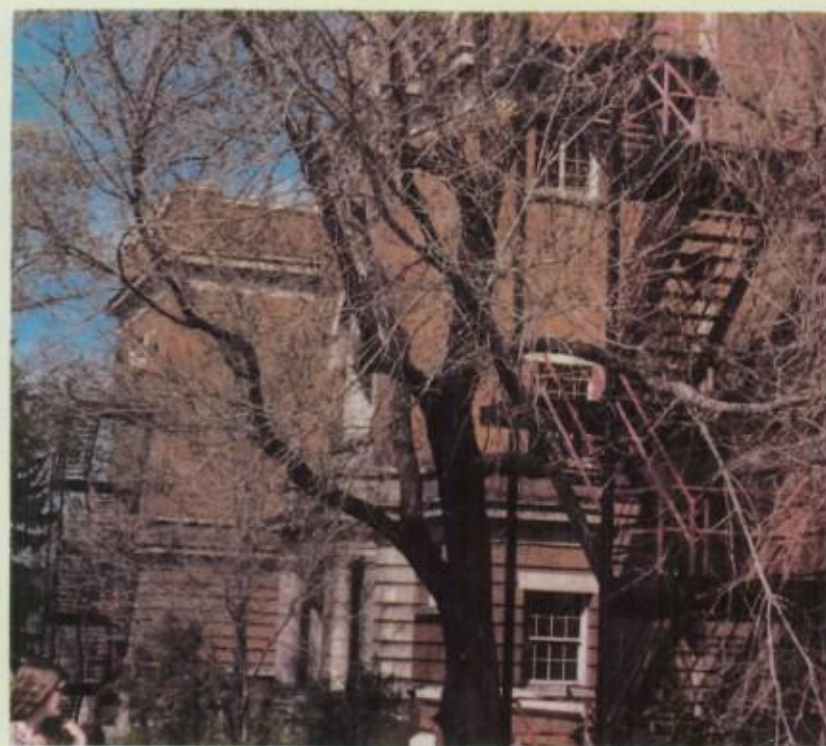

*A time
To dance;*

*A time
To keep silent,*

*A time
To speak;*

*A time
To embrace,*

*A time
To be alone;*

*A time to sow,
And a time to reap;*

Since opening in 1908, nearly 30,000 men and women have proudly graduated from North Central. This, the final copy of the Tamarack to be published in the "original" North Central, is gratefully dedicated to all those graduates who have contributed to both their school and their community through the years (Photo Courtesy Rueco).

"Through being junior class president, I have gained more knowledge of people, commitment, and leadership. Without such super, excited juniors and a very helpful and positive adviser, we could never have gone so far. Also, I would like to say thanks to my officers for their patience and willingness to help. Through all your support, juniors, we made ourselves a success as the Class of '82!!!" — Anne McLellan

"The best part of being a junior class adviser is working with students out of a formal class setting and feeling the energy and enthusiasm they so abundantly possess. It's exciting to watch them develop their leadership skills and reach out to others in friendship."

“Welcome Back . . .”

North Central
Chronicle:
1909-1981*

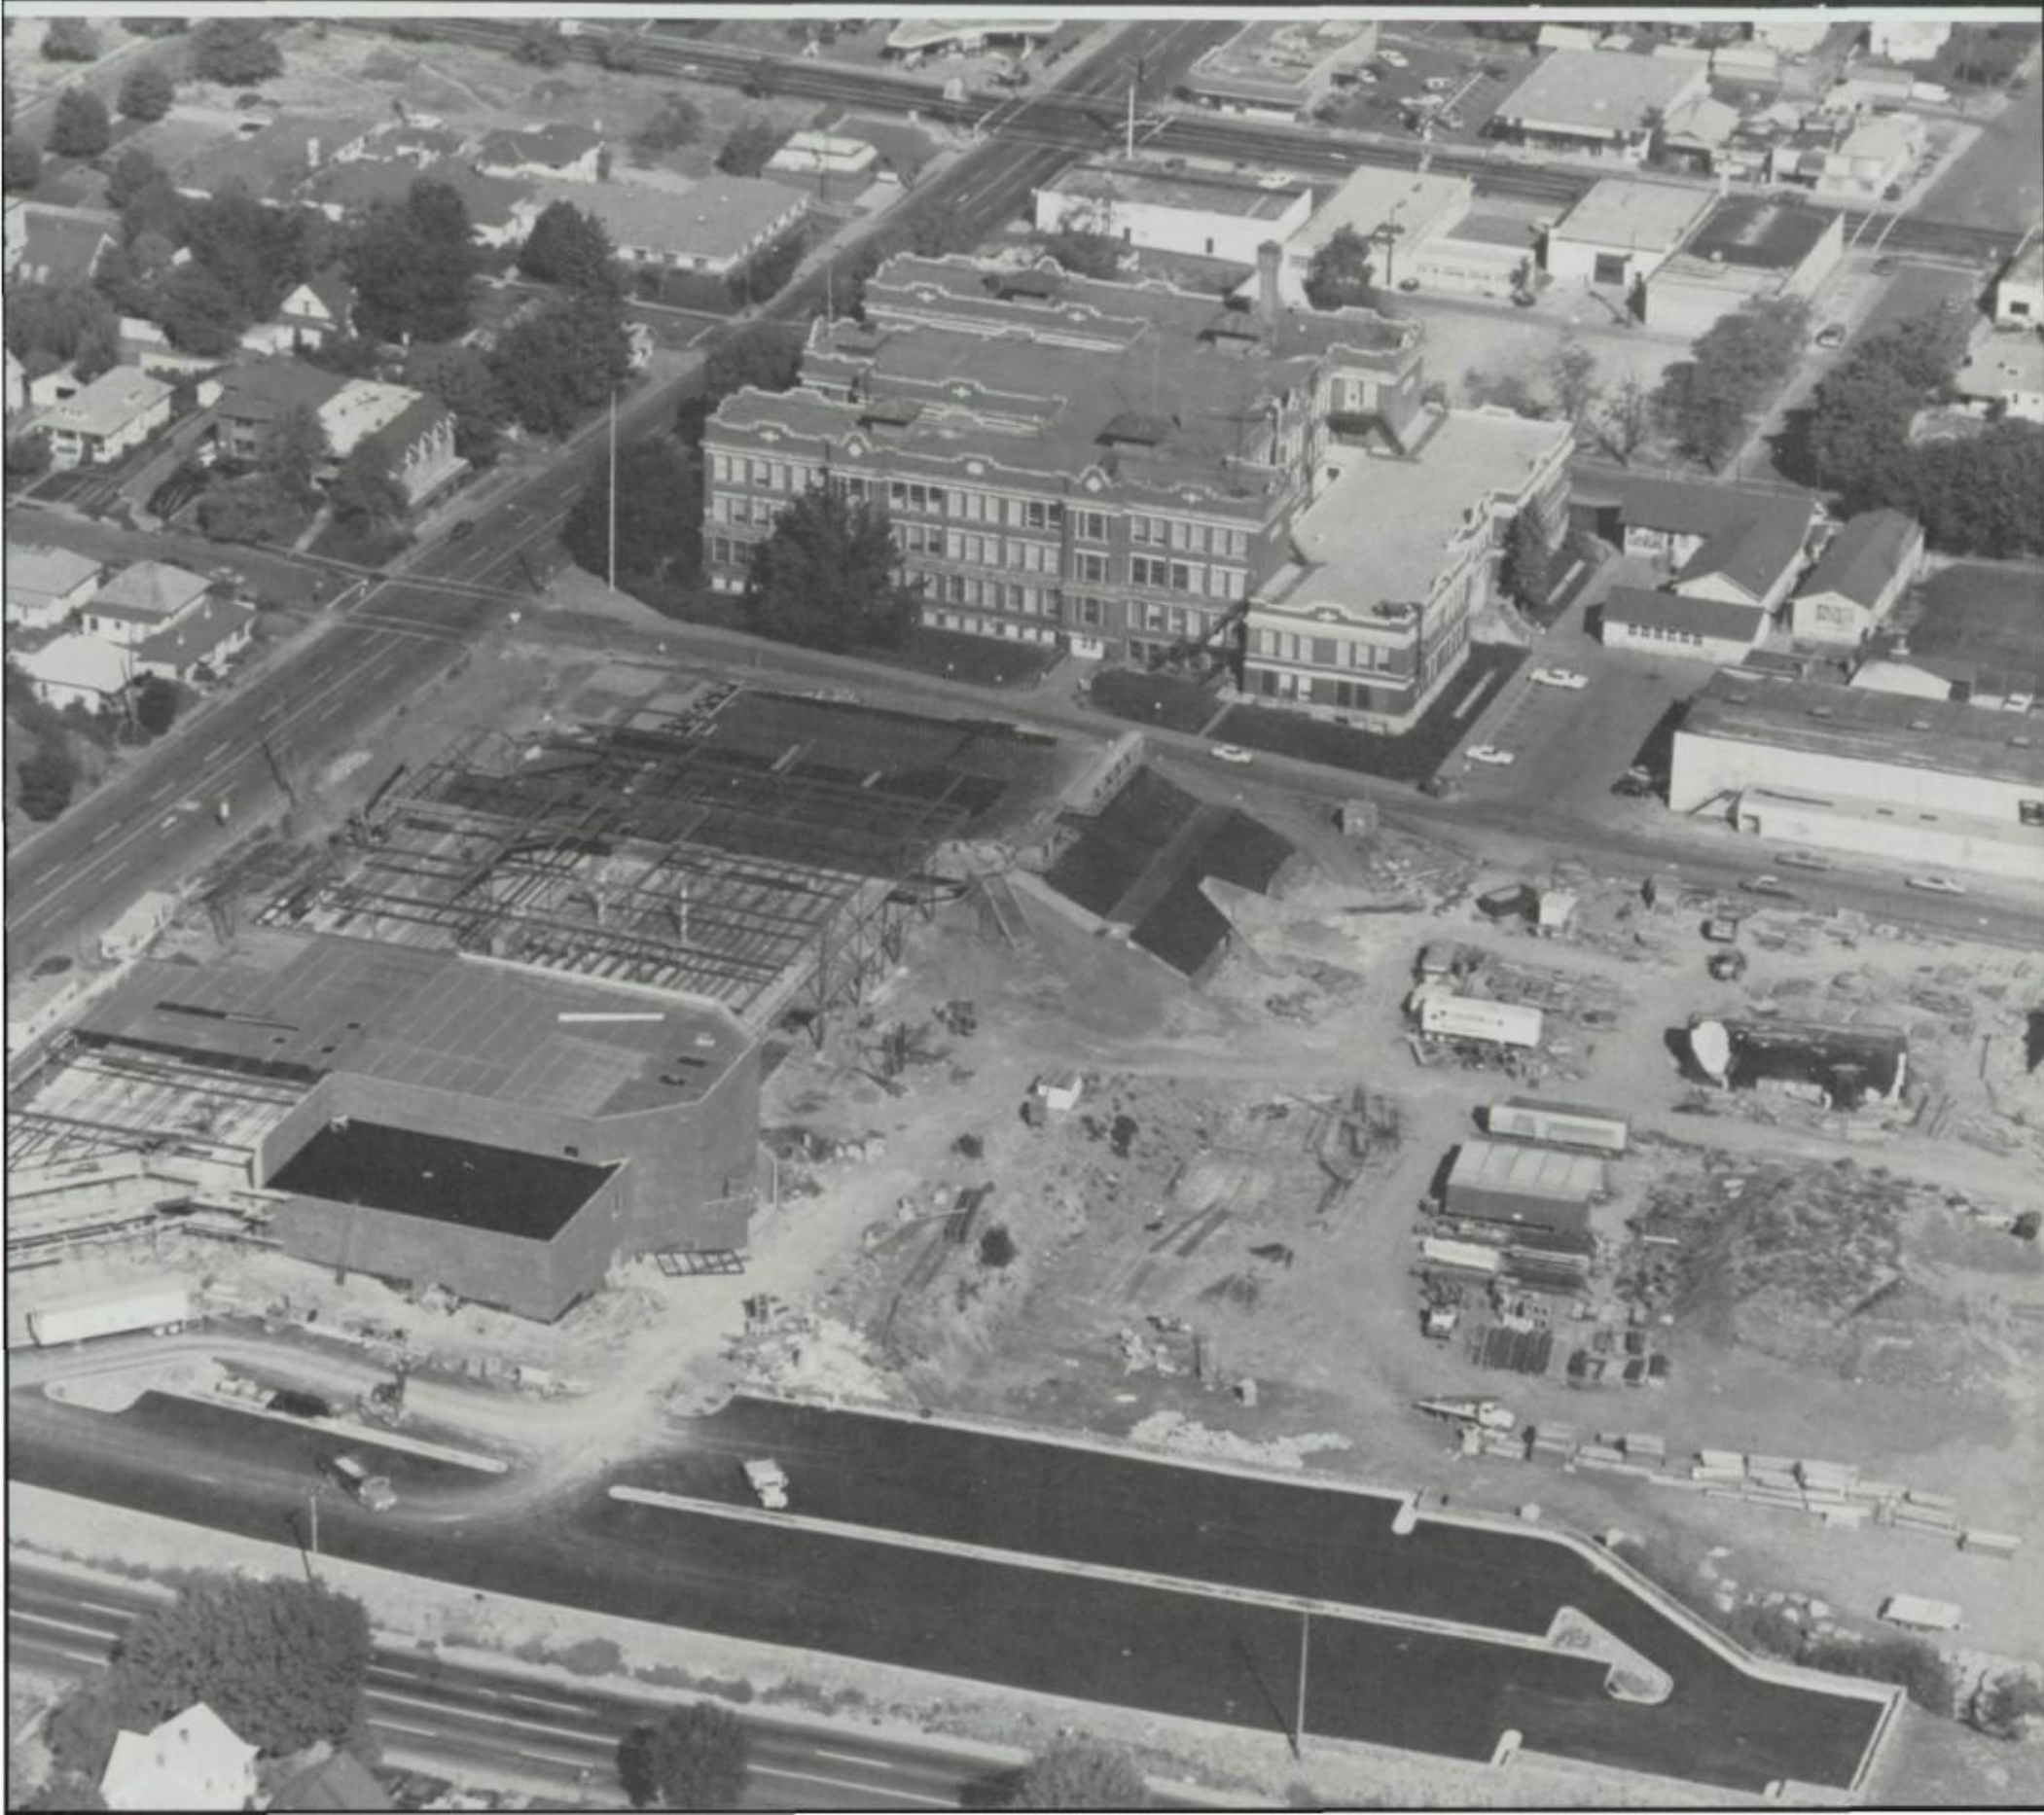

Construction of the old North Central building began in 1909 and took almost two years to complete, at a cost of $385,000. A new addition was added in 1918 to bring the building to its present size. When the playfield was constructed in 1926, the North Central campus reached its final dimensions. The three-story brick structure contained 81 rooms spread over four floors. During the summer of 1981, the building's history will come to an end when it is demolished.

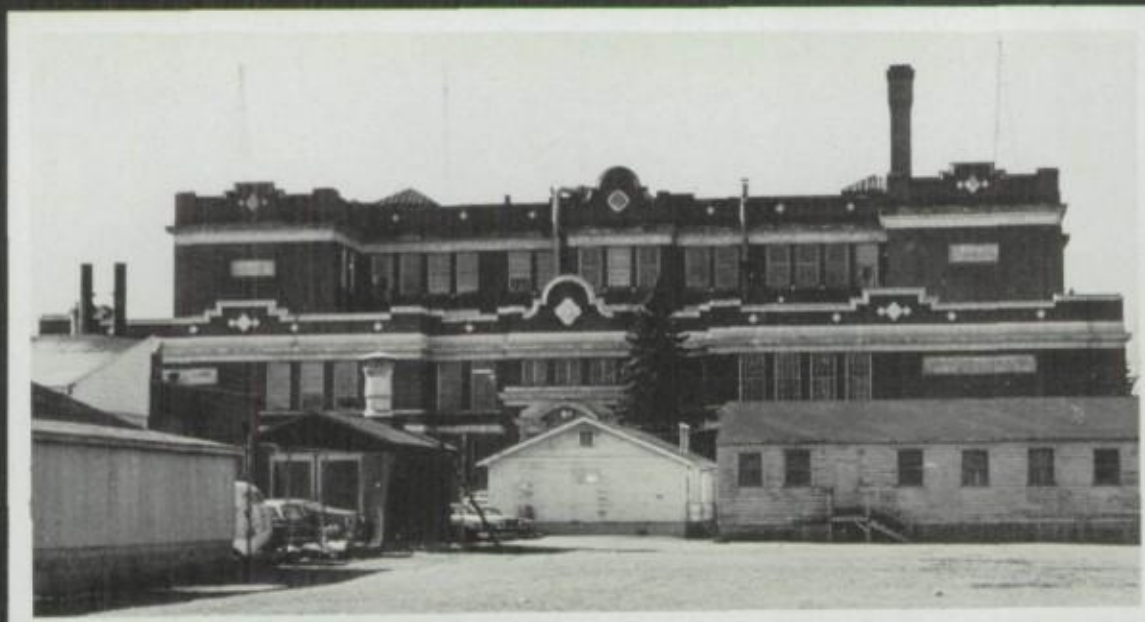

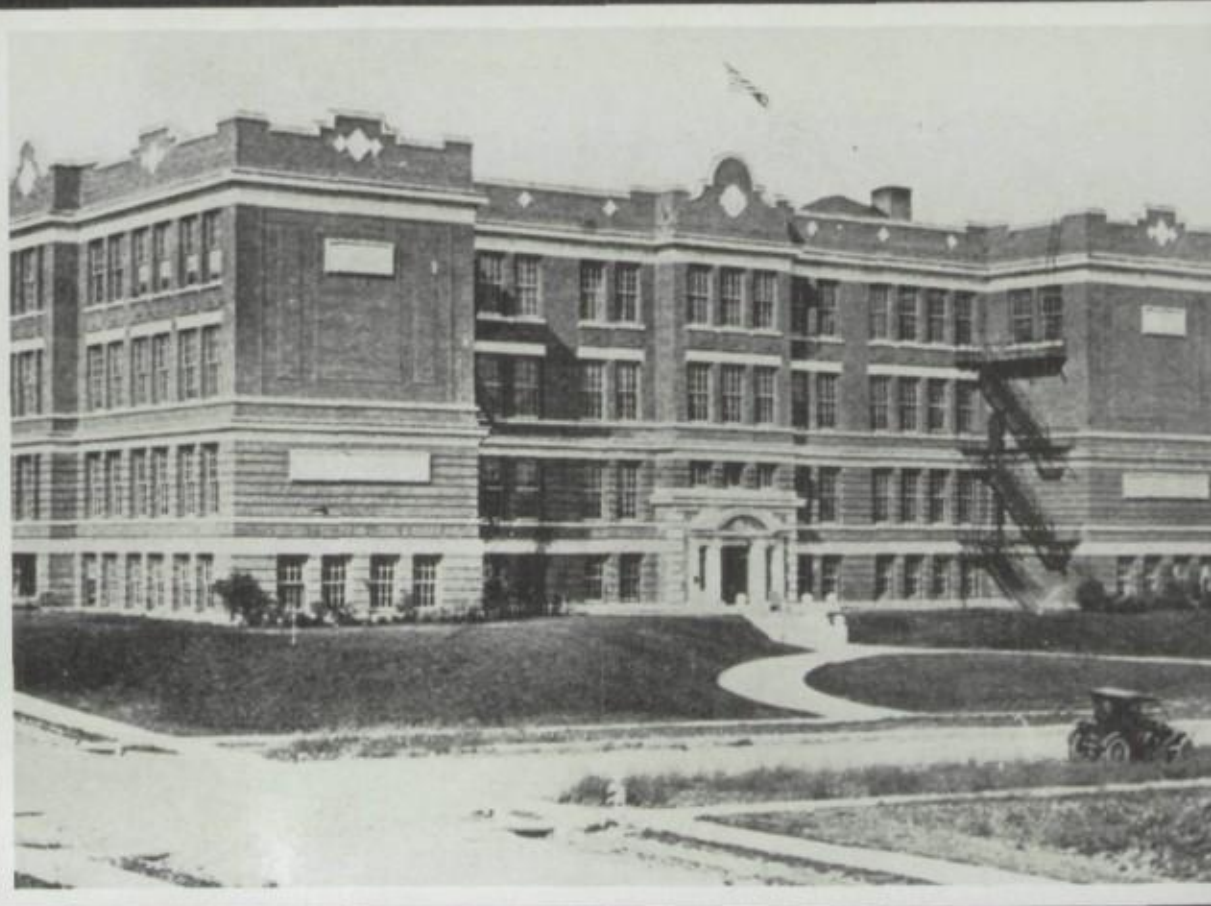

Even before the old building is torn down, students will be attending the new North Central. In passing the bond issue on March 14, 1978, the citizens of Spokane authorized the rebuilding of North Central. From site preparation to the final touches on the campus, this North Central will take approximately 17 months to complete, with the cost eventually reaching $15,000,000. There will be approximately 72 rooms, which will sit on an enlarged campus, including separate baseball and football fields. If the new North Central gives as much service to Spokane as the old North Central, its life span will last through the middle of the next century.

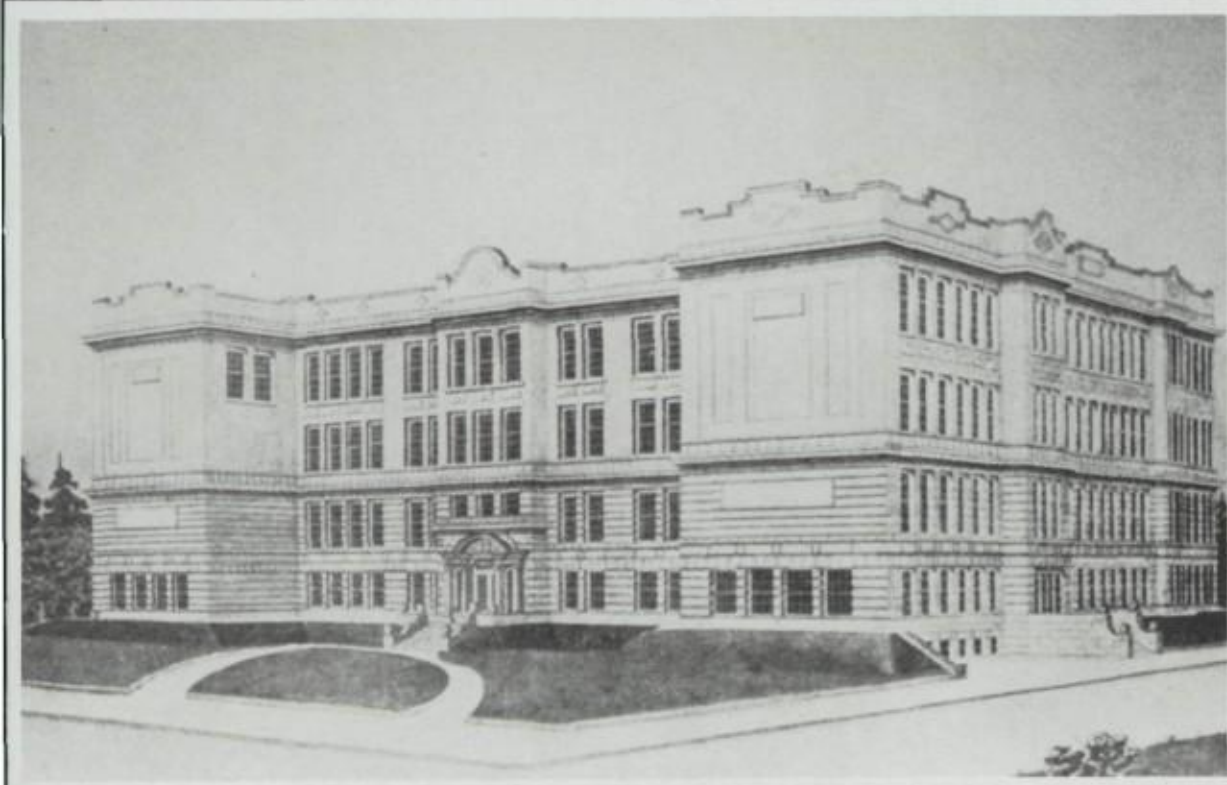

North Central — a School At the Crossroads

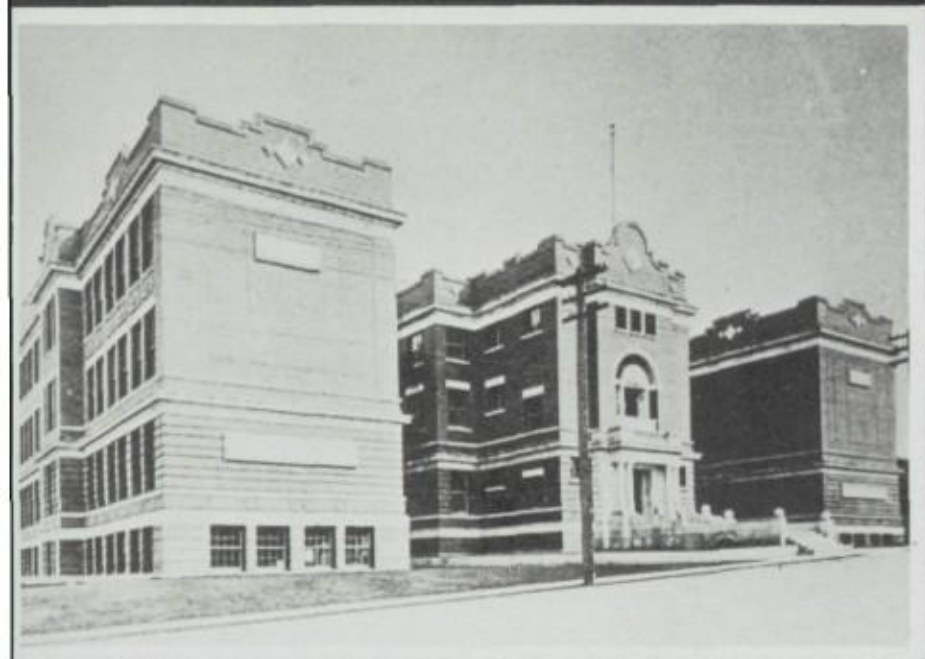

N.C. Serves Through the Years

Right: N.C. students of 1945 gather on the lawn on the northwest corner of the building beneath a plaque bearing the construction date. Below: The east entrance of the building is a good example of the detailed concrete construction which was popular in 1909, when the building was designed. Center Right: North Central is shown from the east side, when all construction was first completed in 1912. Bottom Left: The second and third floors rise above the portable buildings in this view from the small playfield east of the main building. Bottom Right: The seldom used west entrance on Howard Street is pictured here in 1964.

Left: This artist's conception of the "old" North Central building appeared in the Tamarack in 1909 to give students an idea of what their school would look like "when it was finished." Below: A familiar scene has occurred through the years in mid-afternoon as students streamed out of North Central at the end of the school day. This picture is from 1946. Center Left: The Nora Street entrance on the north side of the building became the main entry and exit point for students after construction began to the south of the school in 1980. Bottom: This majestic view of the recently completed North Central in 1912 shows why it was considered to be one of the most magnificent school buildings in the Northwest at that time.

The graduating class of 1981 will bring to nearly 27,000 the number of students who have graduated from North Central. This outpouring of graduates began modestly with 22 students, who received their diplomas as North Central's first graduating class in January 1912. In 1914 the graduate total reached three figures for the first time when 118 were graduated. The figure did not climb over 200 until 10 years later when 216 were graduated in June 1924. Then in June of 1933 the figure reached an even 300. The number of graduates stayed in the 300's each year until 1954 when it reached 404. Within two years the figure was up over 100 to a total of 522 graduates, gradually climbing higher until 1959, when North Central had its largest graduating class of 607 students. In 1957 Shadle Park was opened and the size of North Central's classes began to drop. The exact number of North Central graduates from January 1912 through June 1980 totals 26,738. With the addition of the class of 1981, the total will be nearly 27,000.

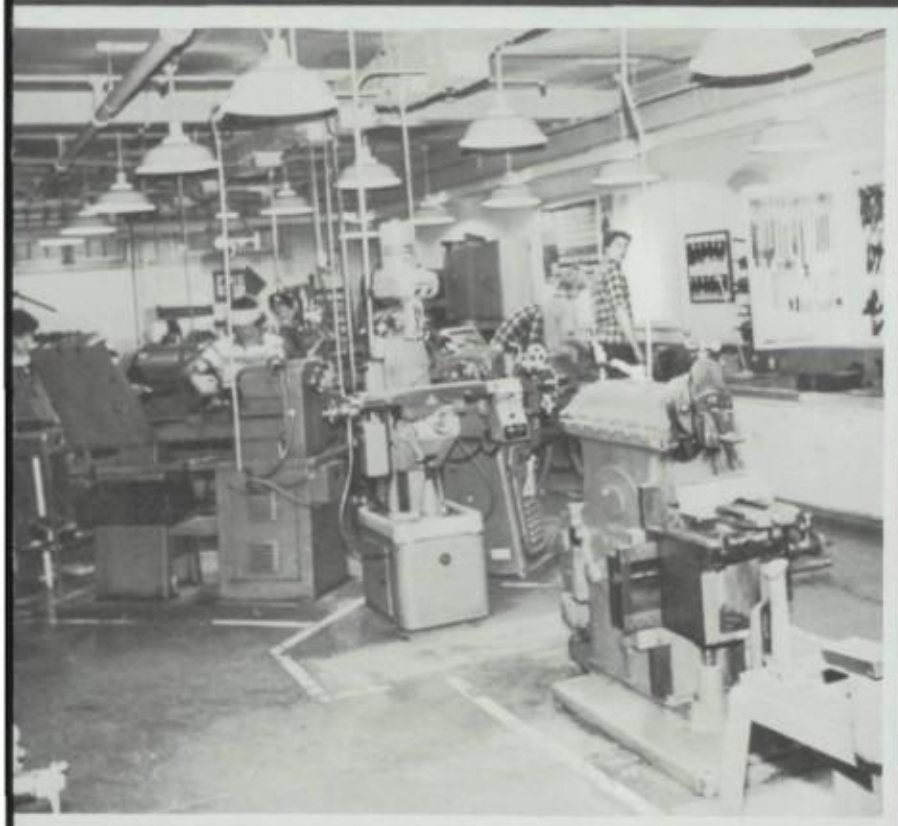

An Inside Look at N.C.

Left: Students in 1981 use the library for the same study and research purposes as their predecessors have for over 70 years. Below: Countless meals have been served in the North Central cafeteria through the years. Bottom Left: The industrial arts classrooms in the North Central basement will be the only area to survive the switch to the new building.

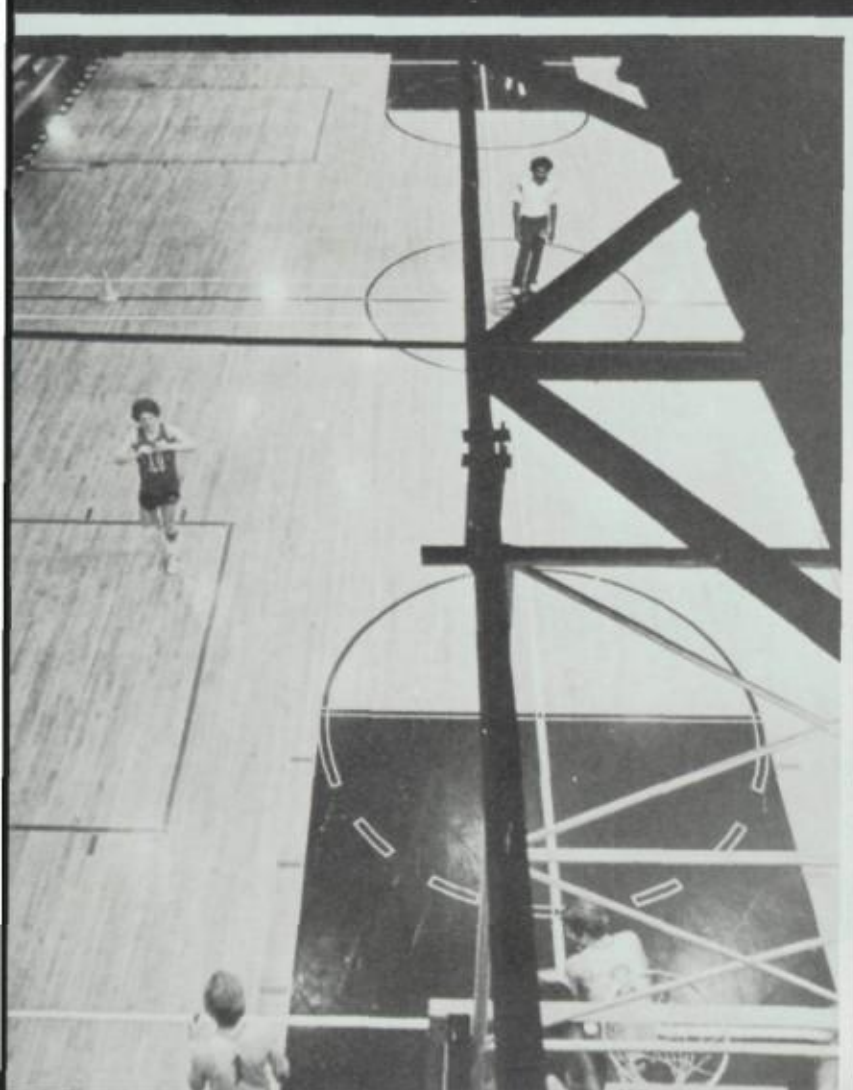

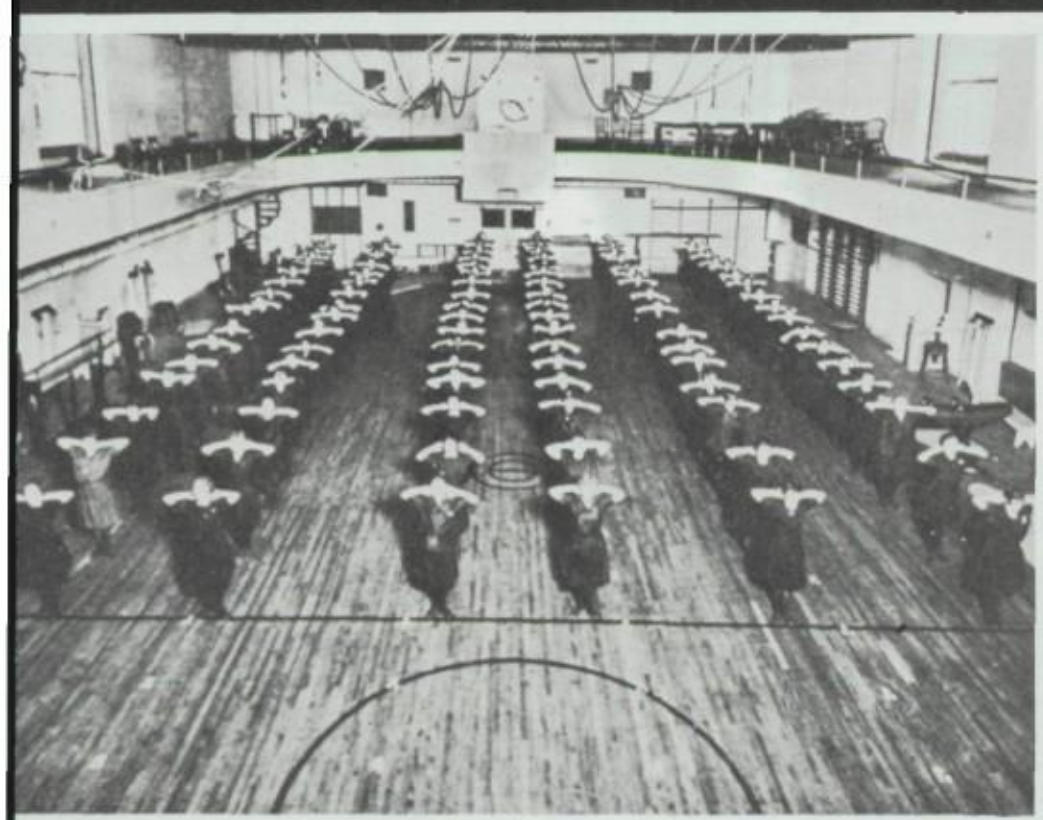

Indian Athletic Arenas

The North Central playfield was begun as a school project in 1926, but was not fully completed until 1935. It was the first part of the North Central campus to disappear, making way for site preparation for the new building in the spring of 1980. Six tennis courts (below left), which overlooked the playfield, sat on the spot where the new North Central building is now being built.

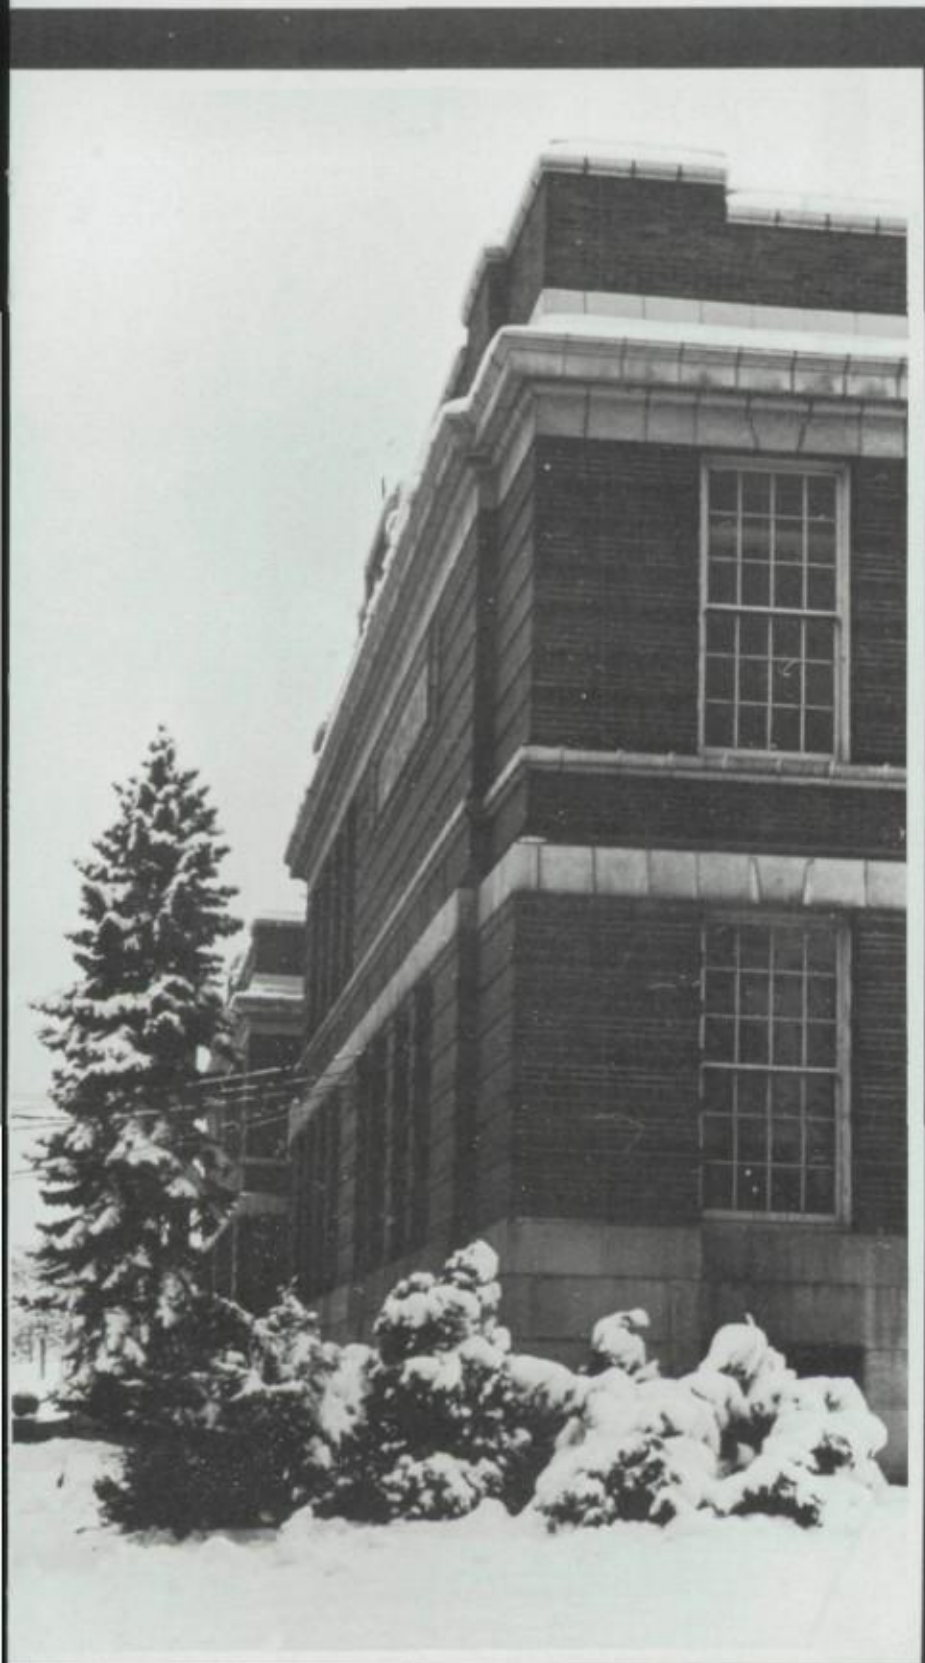

Left: The North Central swimming pool, which was constructed at a cost of $40,000, was first opened in 1919. Center Left: A girls P.E. class is shown doing exercises in the main building gym in 1914. The suspended running track in the picture was taken down in 1946. Below: The Red Feathers stand in formation in the gym as it appears today. Bottom Left to Right: The boys gym, or "new" gym, was originally an Army hospital gym that was given to North Central in 1947. It was moved to its present site east of the main building from its original location at Fort George Wright.

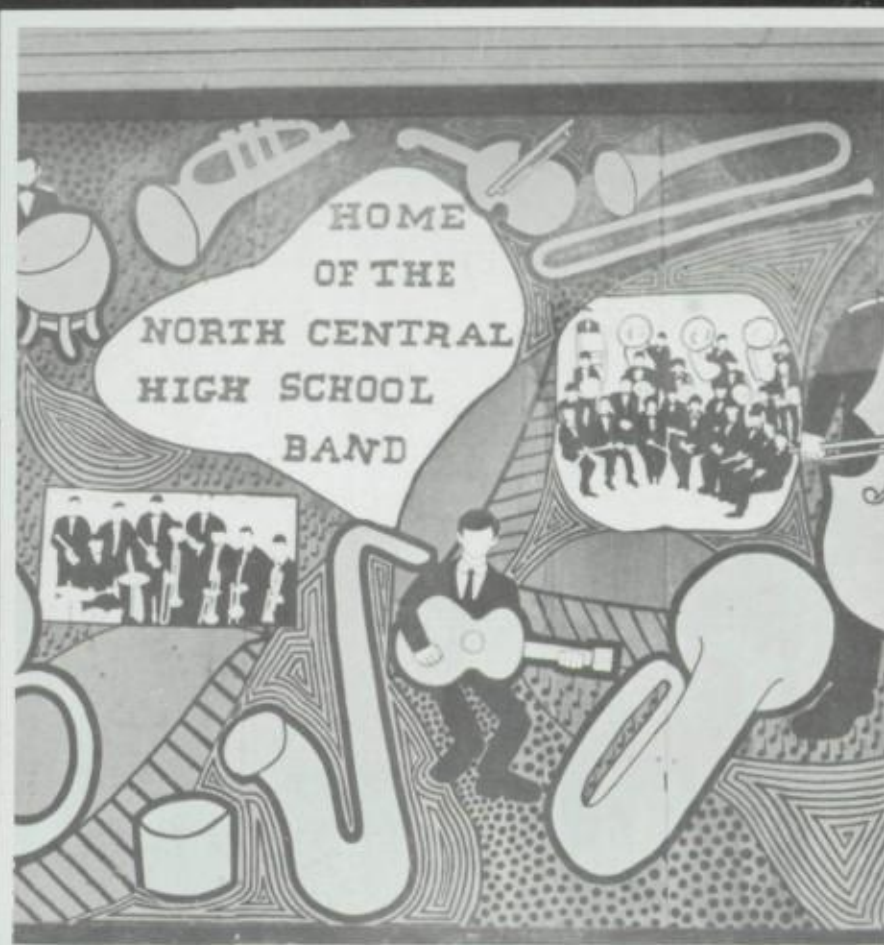

No Co Ho So was the name given to an Indian-head symbol first inlaid in the floor of the first floor hallway off the entrance to the cafeteria in the fall of 1965 (top left). The image was redone in mosaic form in 1971 (top right). Many a freshman in those years was required, on bended knee, to pay homage to No Co Ho So. The image was removed from the floor in 1973, and since then a painted version has hung under the scoreboard in the boys' gym.

Another symbol, portentous rather than traditional, appeared on the corner of Howard and Augusta in the spring of 1978 (right). It was a sign, posted following the successful bond issue, that announced North Central would be rebuilt.

N.C. Has Many Moods

Although the North Central building itself has remained unchanged for over 70 years, it has experienced all the moods that go with growing from infancy to old age. In its early years it was the pride of the Northwest, and in recent years, although showing its age, it has continued to be a source of pride to all who have attended it.

At night (left) the building takes on a quiet and peaceful look. In winter (top left) it has for years sheltered its students from the harsh Spokane winters. The portable structures east of the main building have given loyal service, as well. The portable used for the North Central Band was decorated to give it a "homey" appearance (above).

For Everything
There is a Season . . .

The House on the Hill

They are all gone away,
The House is shut and still,
There is nothing more to say.

Through broken walls and gray
The winds blow bleak and shrill:
They are all gone away.

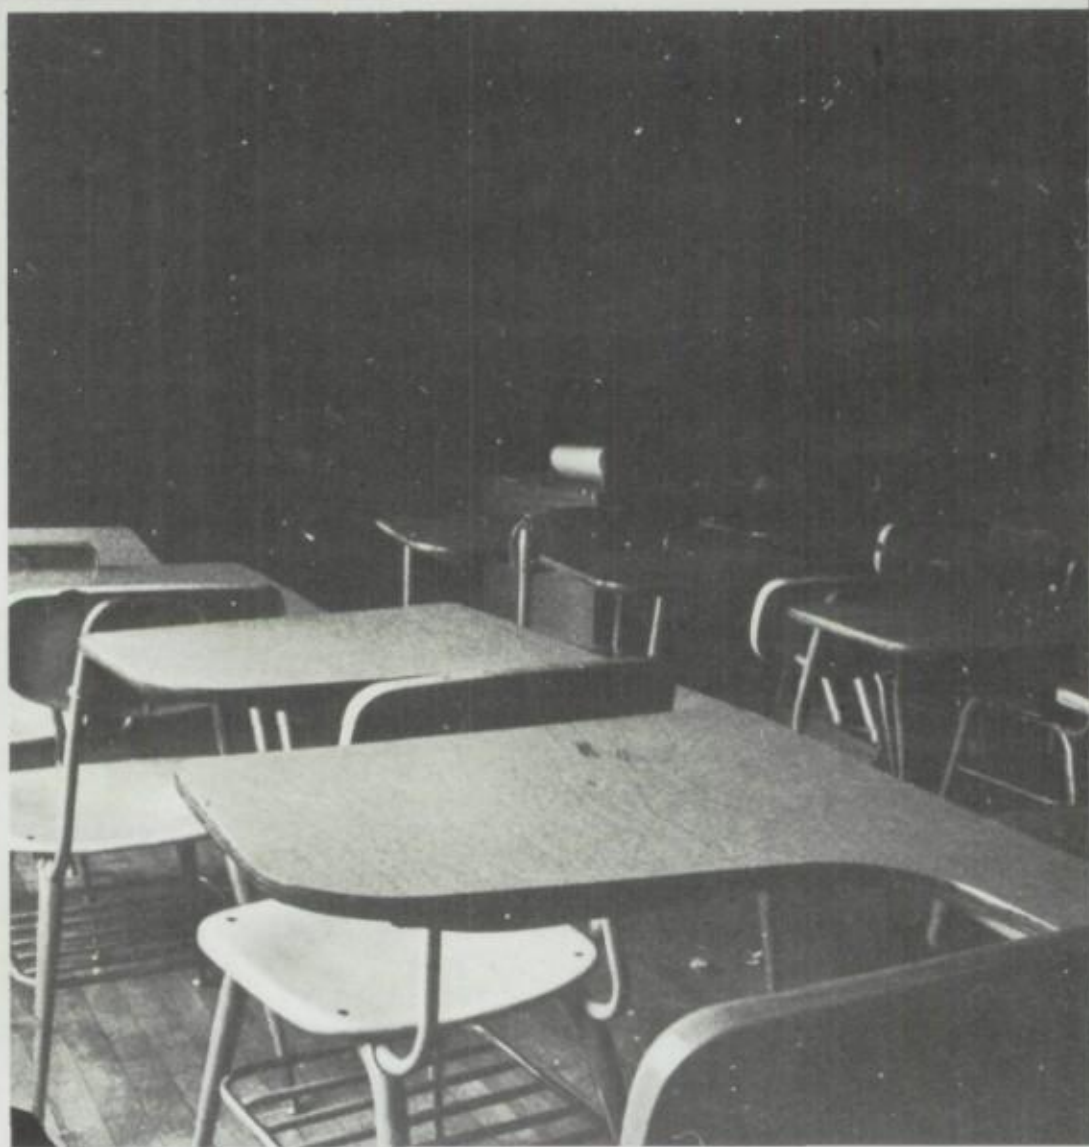

Nor is there one to-day
To speak them good or ill:
There is nothing more to say.

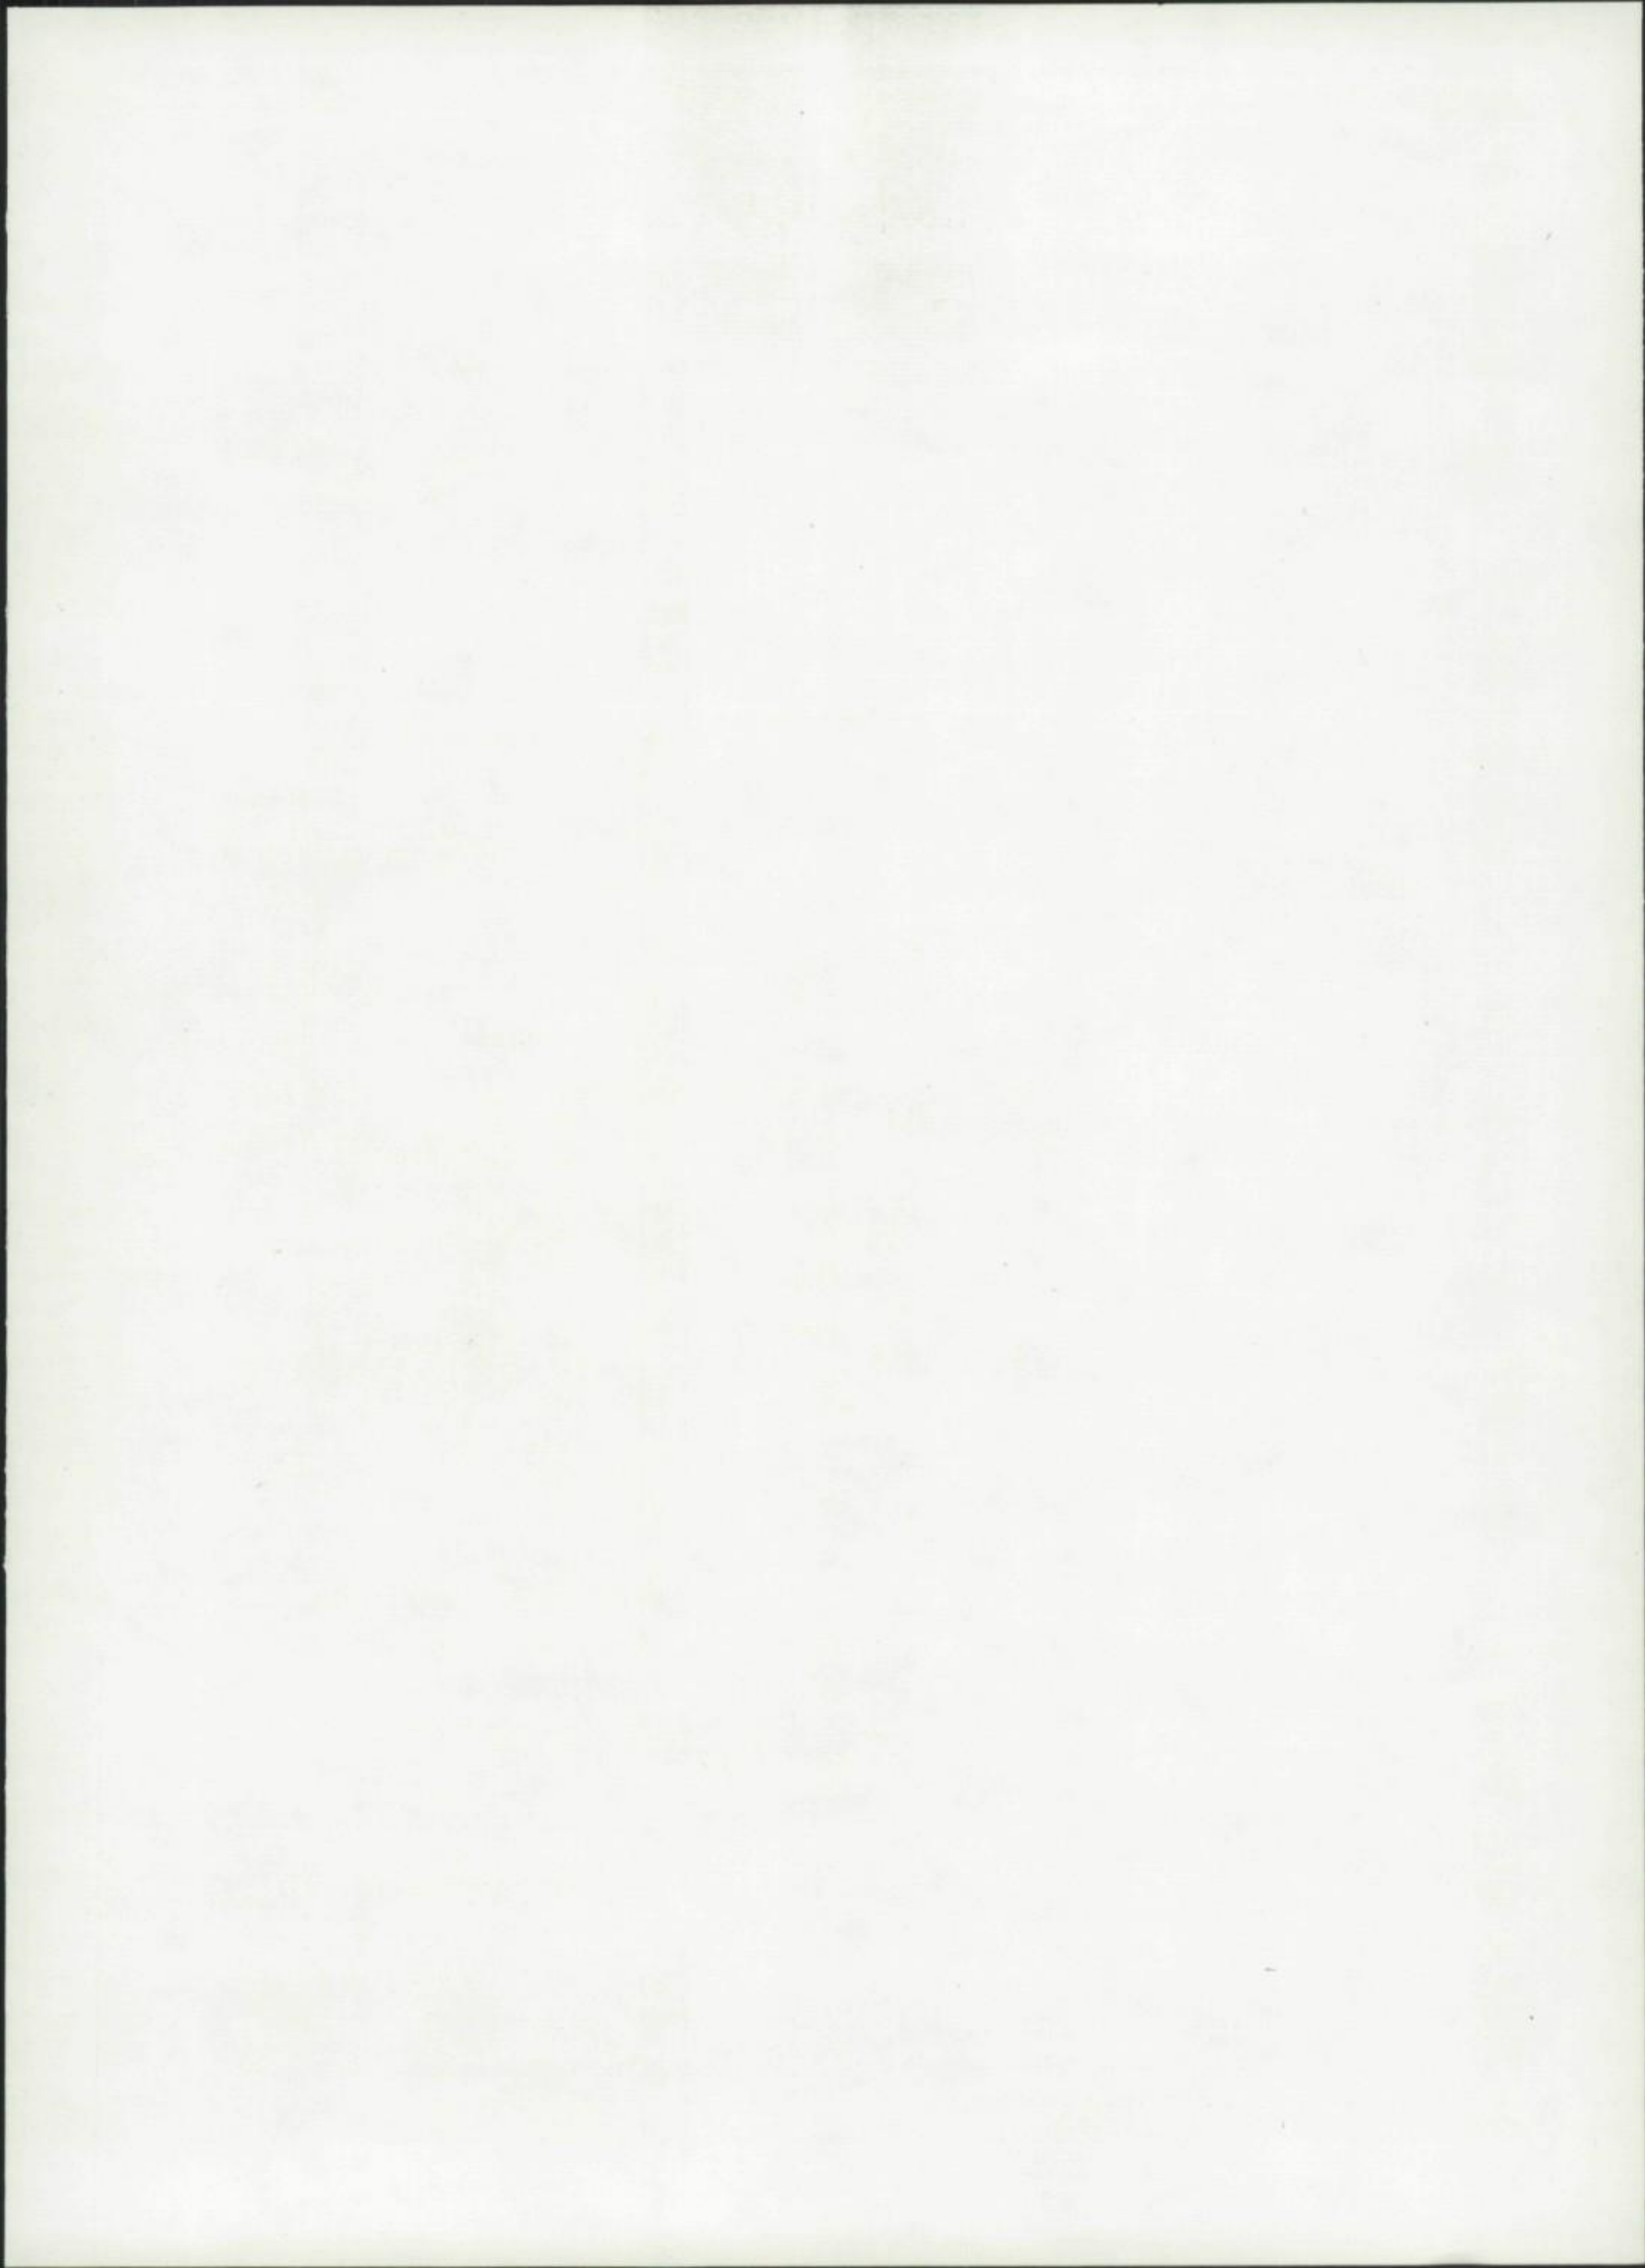

Why is it then we stray
Around the sunken sill?
They are all gone away,

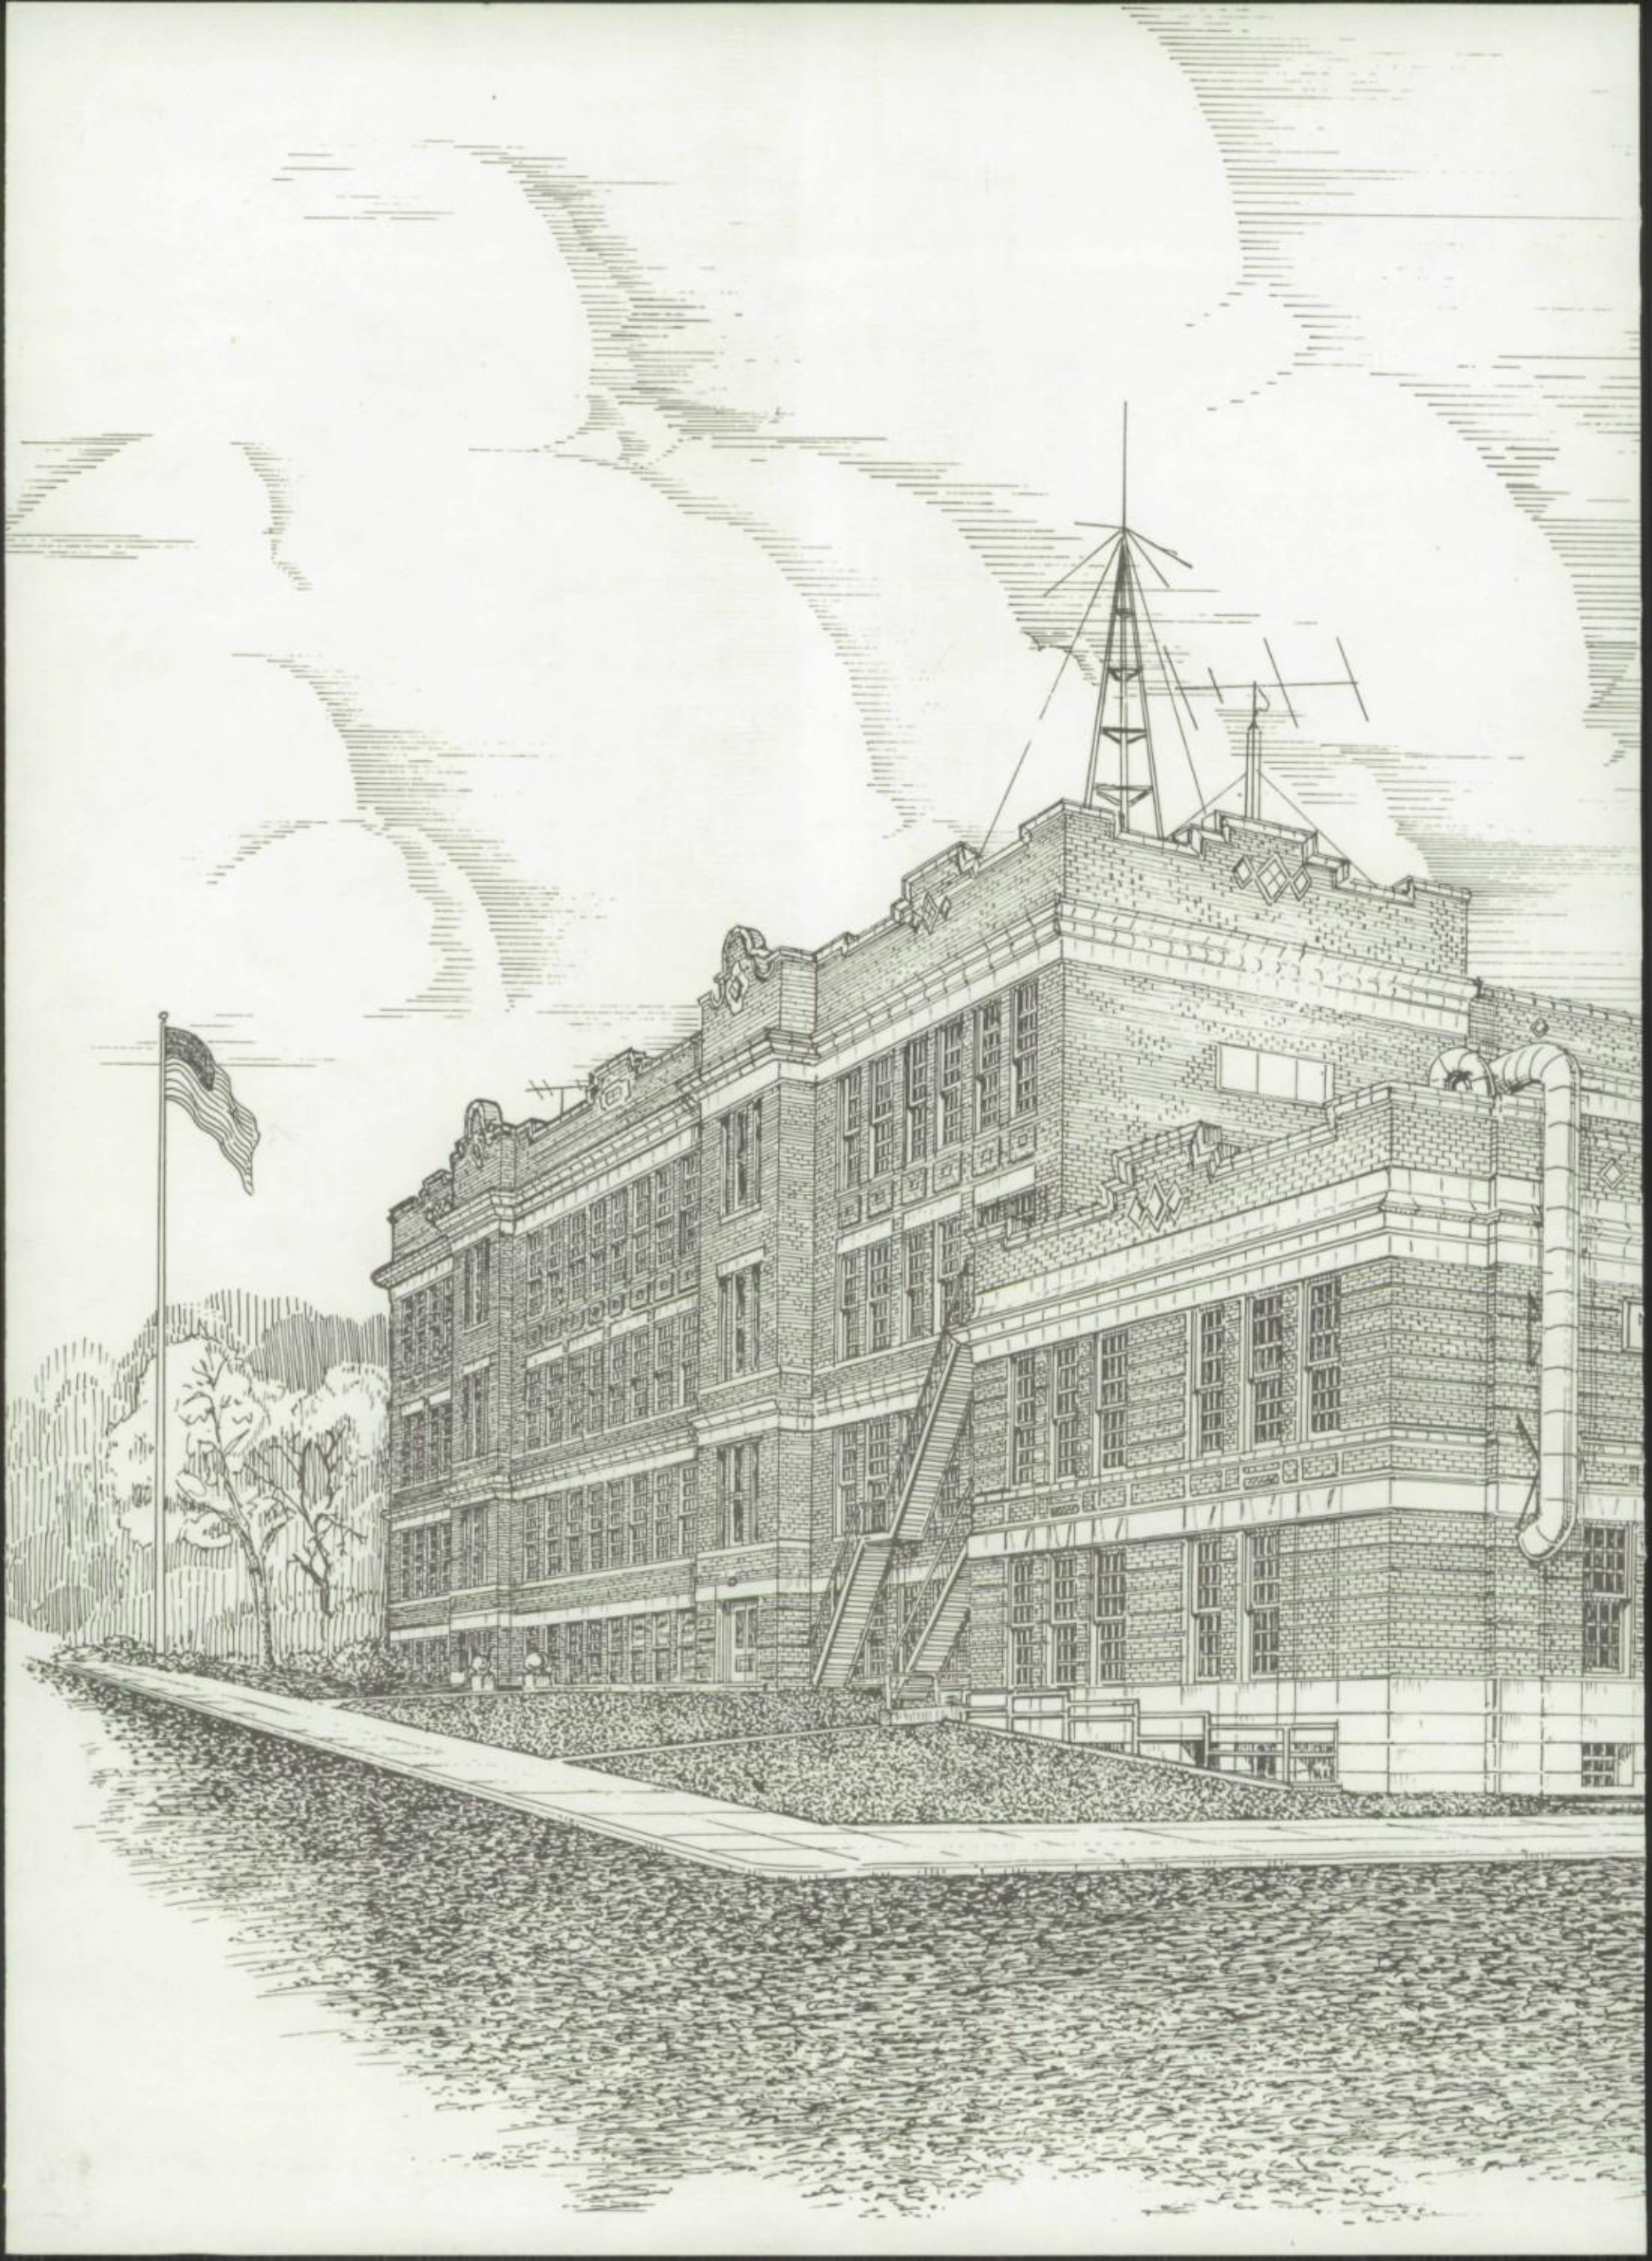

And our poor fancy-play
For them is wasted skill:
There is nothing more to say.

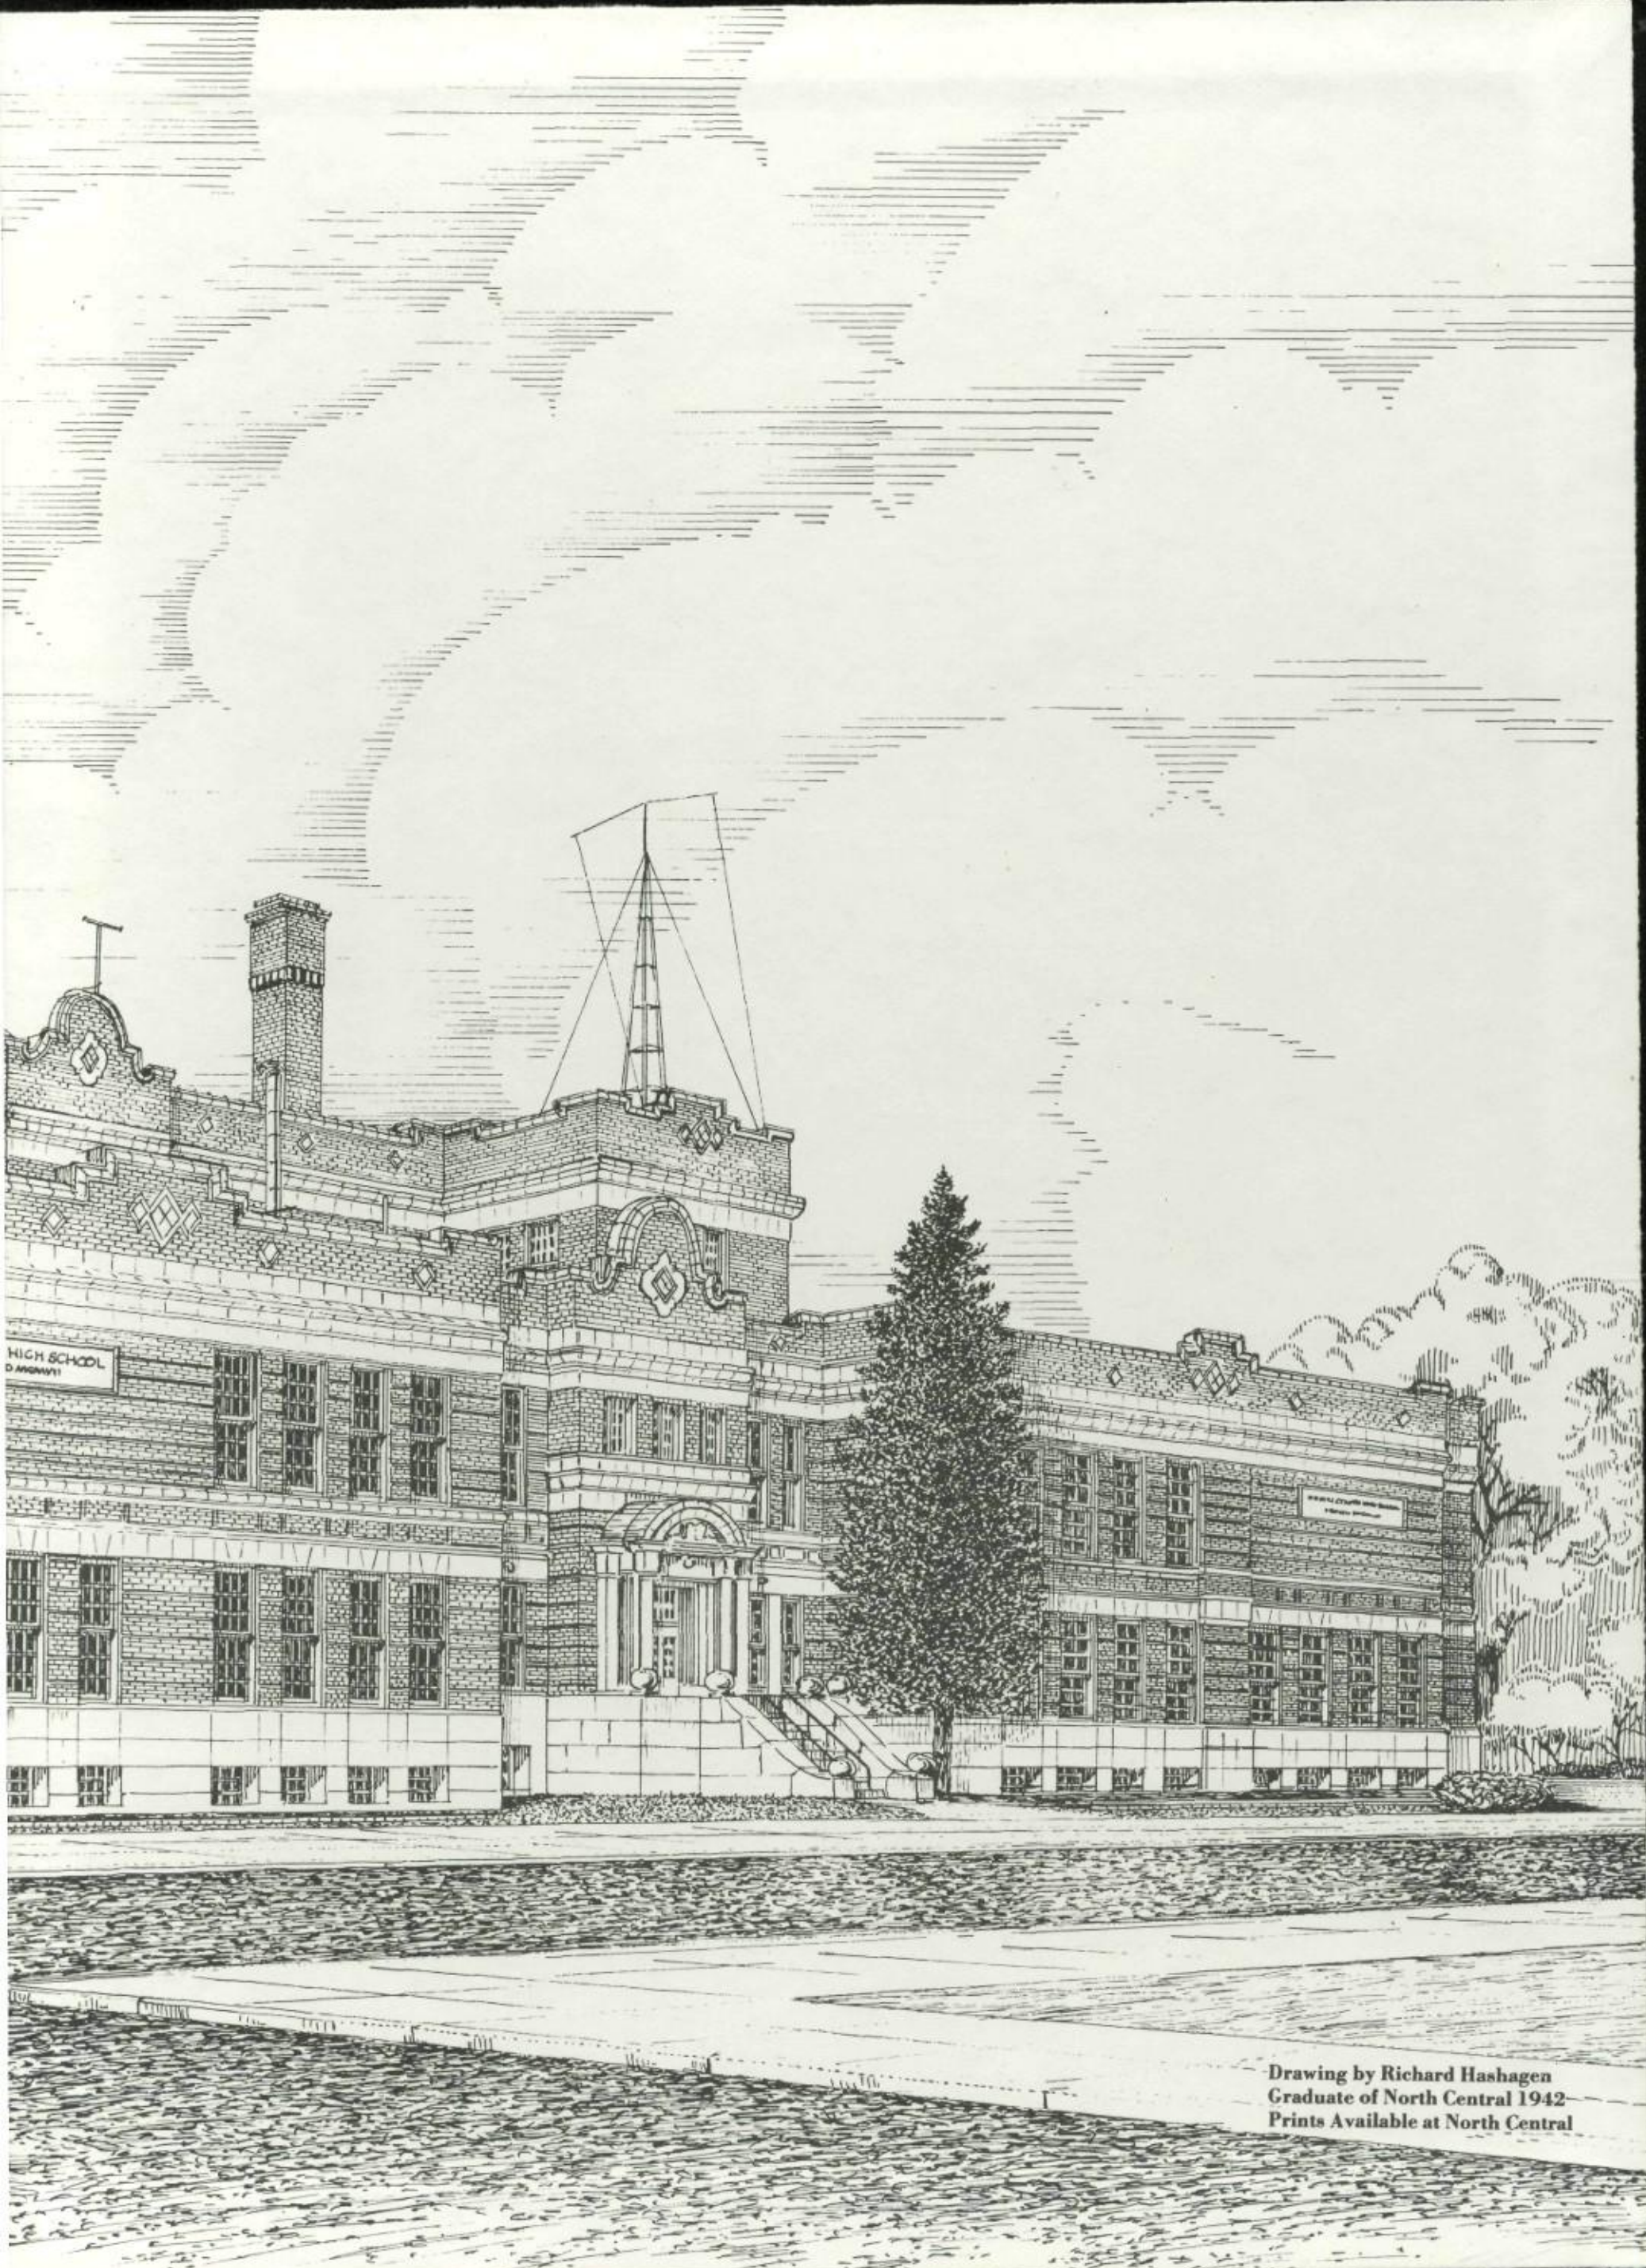

There is ruin and decay
In the House on the Hill:
They are all gone away,
There is nothing more to say.
